

NACE is proud to offer the Certified Professional in Catering and Events (CPCE) designation - the catering and events industry's most prestigious professional certification. Earning the CPCE designation communicates professionalism and expertise. Benefits include:

- A mark of distinction. Catering and events professionals who earn the CPCE are recognized as experts in the industry. The designation "CPCE" will be displayed after your employee's name on all business cards and correspondence. The employee will also receive a certificate to display in the office.
- Potential for increased business. Your employee can communicate with current and potential clients about the meaning of the certification and share the expertise that they can provide to exceed the competition. Other industry professionals will also be more likely to provide referrals.
- Demonstrates commitment to the catering and events industry. Your employee will be respected for their dedication to education and professional advancement.
- Continuous improvement. Maintaining the CPCE certification requires regularly participating in continuing education. Your employee will routinely grow and refine their skillset. More than 90 percent of CPCEs surveyed said the certification increased their confidence level at work.